Lisa,

I cannot understand why ordinance 22-73 is so important that a special meeting of City Council must be held. Tom Homan stated at the July 25th meeting that this ordinance was important enough to allow for 3 readings in order that public comment could be made. Forcing this to be brought to a vote only 2 weeks after it was initially presented, especially since the second reading is being done on Election Day does not show that public comment is being sought. As we have discussed, this ordinance represents an overreach of what the purpose of city government should be involved in. Why is Delaware City government getting involved in the business what choices the public need to make in choosing what companies we are purchasing our energy from? These decisions should be left between consumers and providers, not dictated by city council. This ordinance presents a significant change in the community and deserves more attention than what council is allowing. Please reconsider bringing this to a vote without adequate time for public comment to be formulated with proper research. I am not available to attend the special meeting as I am working the polls.

Best Regards,
